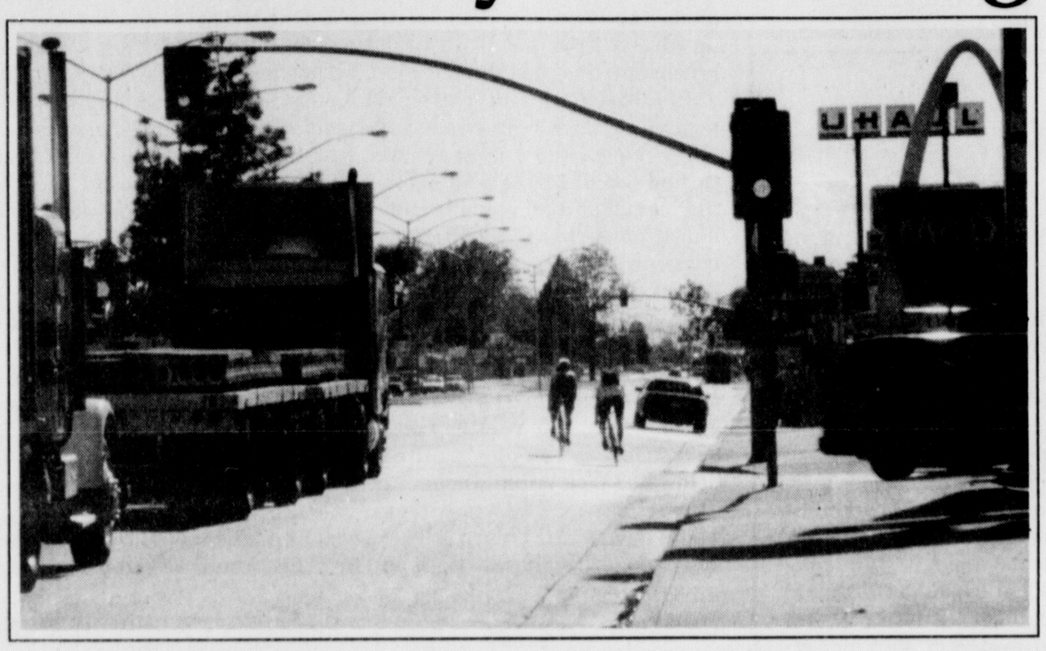
Bike lane issue may boomerang

■ City council member Roland Hensley has asked that the council reconsider its unanimous decision to postpone the placement of bicycle lanes on West Capitol Ave.



A pair of west-bound bicycle commuters mixes with evening traffic on West Capitol Ave.

By Steve Marschke

Roland Hensley has had second thoughts about the decision he and his colleages on the city council made May 10 to turn down a plan to create bike lanes on West Capitol Ave., West Sacramento's main east/west thoroughfare.

Hensley sent a letter to City Manager Joe Goeden yesterday suggesting that the matter be brought back for more discussion.

The bike lane project has been opposed by some local motel owners and by the West Sacramento Downtown Association, both of which had feared that the lanes would hinder on-street parking in front of local businesses.

In his letter to Goeden, Hensley said that on June 5, at Hensley's request, the city's traffic committee discussed the bike lane issue and "strongly agreed that the Bike Lane Project would be beneficial to the whole community of West Sacramento."

He added that "on-street parking by trucks and cars on a major arterial, such as West Capitol Avenue has been a significant (safety) problem, creating hazards to the bicyclists and sight distance limitations to the motorists." And Hensley argued that the bike lanes would be consistent with the city's general plan and bicycle/pedestrian master plan, which includes long-range goals for bike and pedestrian paths.

Hensley also wrote that the prohibition of on-street parking would "provide the police a legitimate enforcement tool to help eliminate prostitution on West Capitol Avenue.

City manager Goeden could not be reached to comment on Hensley's letter. Typically, such a request from a councilman would lead to a rescheduling of the issue.

After the council's May 10 decision against the bike path proposal, which was to have been partly funded by the state, Mayor Cindy Tuttle told the News-Ledger that it appeared that the proposal may not have been the best way to plan new bike lanes, although the city still planned on creating them in the future.

Local women's club to raise money for cops' interview room

By David Weller

The West Sacramento chapter of Soroptimist International announced this week that it will be raising funds to provide the police department with a "soft" interview room.

"This room will be used by the police staff when the need arises to interview children, or families with children. We feel that it is important for children to have a comfortable environment when faced with what is often a very stressful time," said Soroptimist Human Rights Coordinator Eva Aceituno in a press release.

> Eva Aceituno

A retired police lieutenant, Penny Welch, brought the need for an interview room to the attention of the professional women's organization several years ago, according to Aceituno. "Since we're going into a new facility, we thought this would be a good time do it," she said.

"One focus of Soroptimists is the rights and status of women, and one of our goals is to help women escaping a violent environment. We have asked Chief Gore that we be allowed to participate in the planning. We hope to make it a comfortable place. Perhaps with a TV, VCR, and comfortable furniture," Aceituno said.

The organization is planning a fund-raising dinner/dance with a western theme to be held on August 26 at the VFW hall.

West Sacto resident Claudia Hill, 107, dies

Claudia M. Hill, one of West Sacramento's oldest residents (age 107), died May 30 in West Sacramento.

Mrs. Hill, as daughter Barbara Elms reports, was one of the founders of the First Baptist Church in West Sacramento and was "sharp" and full of spirit until the last few weeks of her life.

Mrs. Hill was preceded in death by her husband, Noble W. Hill, and is survived by children Barbara C. Elms of West Sacramento, Eugene Hill of Fairfield and Robert Hill of Carmel; by four grandchildren; by eight great grandchildren;; and by one great great grandchild.

She was a native of Illinois, born the first of three daughters to an Anna, Illinois couple on June 14, 1887.

In a eulogy written by family members and delivered by Pastor Gary Clements, Mrs. Hill was described as "determined, liberated, genuine and sincere" and as "a guiding force in the lives of. . . many people."

Interment was at Park View Cemetery in Manteca and memorials are preferred to First Baptist Church, 1511 Delaware Ave., West Sacramento, CA 95691.

Local arrangements are under the direction of River Cities Funeral Chapel.

School district stats:

District touts improved attendance

By David Weller

The Washington School district experienced a significant reduction in unexcused absences over for the last school year, according to information released by the district administrative office this week.

Overall, the numbers of unexcused absences dropped by 6,516 student days, which represents a 35 percent decrease over the previous year.

"Its a wonderful achievement for the school district and all the people who work here, every classified and non-classified employee in the district is responsible. We have a great bunch of people here and they went out and made a difference," said Superintendent Dr. David Miller.

The best improvements occurred at Westmore Oaks Elementary, Alyce Norman Elementary, and River City High School. At Westmore Oaks, the number of absent days dropped from 798 to 296. At Alyce Norman the number dropped from 1,401 to 557, and at River City it dropped from 7,576.

Miller credited several steps the district has taken for the improved attendance record, including the institution of a Student Attendance Review Board (SARB) to deal with persistent truants, and the hiring of a child welfare and attendance officer after a year without one.

Additional changes at the high school which Miller believes have encouraged students to attend more regularly were the addition of seventh period athletics, and mandatory attendance at first period. The high school also added three new sports.

"The high school made it very clear that attendance policies were going to be enforced," he said.

At Westmore Oaks Elementary School, the students painted a big tree on the wall and each class got a new leaf on its branch for perfect attendance, according to Miller.

School Board President Stuart Knox added that improvements in the appearance of the facilities made the schools more desirable places to be. "The district dedicated itself to making the facilities more attractive to students, making them feel they have a nice place to go," he said.

Dr. Dennis Kelleher, the assistant superintendent of personnel and pupil services who also sits on the SARB board agrees with Miller and Knox that the presence of the board has had a positive effect on attendance.

The board has the ability to take a number of actions designed to get problem truants back into school, including withholding a student's driver's license and in the most extreme cases, referring the families to the courts, which can levy fines against the parents, or even sentence them to jail.

The Washington District has had one family fined by the court since the SARB began one year ago.

"In the past, people would say, 'So what if I don't go to school.' Now students know that there are possible consequences if they don't show up. If one family gets fined, they talk to others in the district," said Kelleher.

Sweeney to return to duty

By David Weller

Washington School District expects to see Assistant Superintendent Jim Sweeney back to work by the first of next month, according to board president Stuart Knox.

Sweeney has been on leave for several months, since he had a physical altercation with Superintendant Dr. David Miller. Sweeney is Assistant Superintendent in charge of business and has worked for the district for several years.

In other administrative personnel matters, Dr. Linda MacDonnell, who has been Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum for a little more than a year, has resigned her position for medical reasons.

Man arrested after car hits motorcycle on West Capitol near Poplar Ave.

By Steve Marschke

A San Jose man reportedly fled on foot and was captured after he was involved in a hit and run accident on West Capitol Ave.

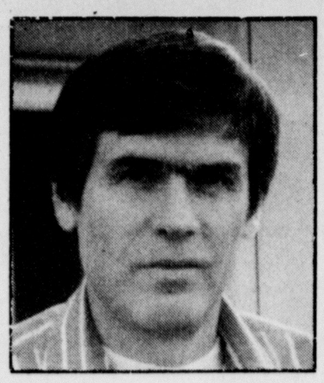
At about 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, a car driven by suspect Patrick Tilley, 32, sideswiped a motorcycle driven by Jerry Tanner, 53, of West Sacramento. Tanner was injured in the crash, which occurred near Poplar Ave., and was listed in stable condition, said Lt. Russ Thomas of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Witnesses said Tilley then abandoned his 1977 Chevrolet Chevette and his Rotweiler dog and fled through nearby backyards, and was located by police in the Willow Ave. area. A police report indicated he was "staggering" and appeared to be under the influence of alcohol.

Tilley was arrested for felony hit and run and felony drunk driving.

The Little League Phillies: a coach's delight

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

This spring, my 9-year-old son, Kyle, decided he wanted to play one more year of Little League baseball. "Why don't you take up soccer," I suggested, "or maybe even karate?"

"You just don't want to coach anymore," interjected my oldest son, Ty, whose Little League teams I had managed or coached for what seemed like a dozen years.

"That's not it at all," I lied.

"Oh yes it is," said Ty, who knows me all too well.

"Would you be willing to help me?" I asked him, knowing he wasn't about to give up three months of his spring and early summer to attend Little League practices and games.

"Just do it one more time, Dad," pleaded Kyle with his big brown eyes. "I won't even mind it when you yell at me."

The name of Kyle's team turned out to be the Phillies, and since it was what they now call a minor-A team, I got to choose my own players. "Just make sure you get Anthony," said Kyle, who is my son's best friend and next door neighbor.

"Any other requests?" I asked him before I headed off to the draft.

"You better get Justin and Kevin, too," said Kyle, referring to two of the best players from his minor-B team of a year ago. "If you pick them," he added with conviction, "the Phillies will kick butt!"

As the draft began, I looked down at the names and scores I had given each player during his or her tryout. I had carefully judged them in areas like their ability to hit, run, catch, and throw. But I had also scribbled down some of the more important things to remember on draft day, like who were the kids I most enjoyed being around, which ones could handle losing and didn't have to win at all costs, which ones would encourage their teammates and not try to show up their opponents, and maybe most important of all, which ones had parents who wouldn't drive me crazy once the season started.

In many ways, the Phillies -- who wrap up their season next week -- have turned out to be the most enjoyable group of young athletes I've ever been around. I've had teams that have won more games, but never one better at appreciating a victory or quickly putting a tough loss behind them. They were the youngest team in their league, and also the smallest, but they always hustled and tried hard to play the game to the very best of their ability.

More specifically, Kevin Cheechov -- with the help of his dad, who bravely volunteered to be the President of the West Sacramento Little League this year -- made himself into a fine pitcher and he also swung the bat so well he ended up hitting third for us all year long; Max Elloit graciously accepted the fact that we needed him at first base -- although he would have preferred to pitch or catch -- and he always seemed to play a big role in the games we won; Justin Lucas turned out to be the best defensive shortstop in the league and he made it look so easy and pro-like at times that I thought my eyes were playing tricks on me. His great arm and feel for the game is something you rarely see in a 9-year-old; Danny Zonneveld's versatility and ability to catch line drives and pop flies was really important to the Phillies and he ended up playing every infield position at one time or another; Josh Zonneveld was our best base runner and power hitter, and he also insisted on playing the shallowest center field since Wee Willie Keeler; Mark Johnson was the youngest Phillie -- only 8-years-old -- but you would have never known it by the way he pitched and played third base. "Rock and fire," his proud dad would yell at him when he was pitching, and rock and fire he always did; Michael Parrish bravely volunteered to catch for us -- although he had never done it before -- and he turned out to be the team's most inspirational player. For those who wanted to see Little League at its best, all they had to do was watch Mike for a few innings behind home plate; Silas Zdybel really wanted to play on the Phillies and his positive attitude and beyond-his-years perspective on what's actually important in life will take him a long way after he hangs up his spikes; A.J. Saucedo got some very important hits for us, made a spectacular catch in the outfield I will never forget, and was such a joy to be around that his mother is lucky I didn't try to steal him; Andrea Anagnostopoulous was always one of the first players to arrive at every game and one of the last to leave, and he has the kind of swing that will someday allow him to hit the ball over the major league fence; Anthony Bianchi -- as his dad once explained to me with a smile -- had the very best eye on the Phillies. He didn't swing at a lot of pitches, but someday he will, and line drives will start flying all over the place; and Kyle Fisher got his wish -- to play one year on a minor-A team with his friends -- and his only regret, as I understand it, was that Anthony, Kevin and Justin always outran him to the snack bar after the games to get their snow cones.

I also want to sincerely thank John Lucas, Mike Johnson, Ron Zonneveld, Walt Cheechov, John Zonneveld, Bob Bianchi, and Kit Parrish for helping coach the Phillies; Linda Bianchi for keeping score -- even on the really cold nights; Dori Lucas for throwing the whole team a pizza party; Rosie Johnson, Mary Fisher, and Mary Anagnostopoulous for working in the snack bar; John Lucas for letting all twelve of the Phillies ride in (hang out of, actually) his 1913 Hudson convertible during the Opening Day parade; and Sally Lucas for taking on the toughest job on any Little League ball club, being the team mother.

Now, if I can only find a way to get Kyle interested in soccer or karate.

The NBA must be very happy with the championship "Magic" matchup featuring Shaquille O'Neil and the Orlando Magic against Hakeem "The Dream" Olajuwon and the defending champion Houston Rockets.

The Rockets shocked the Spurs last week and made a believer out of me by whipping San Antonio and sending Dennis Rodman with his wild hair and bad attitude on an early vacation.

The Magic had to battle the Pacers all the way to the seventh game to reach the NBA finals. Olajuwon, the NBA's best player, will be at war with the powerful O'Neal, this year's regular-season scoring champion.

The biggest matchup problem for the Rockets will be Magic guard Anfernee Hardaway. At 6-foot-7, Hardaway is four inches taller than Kenny Smith and Sam Cassell, Houston's point guards! The NBA finals start on Wednesday in Orlando for two games, then switch to Houston for the next three and back down to Orlando for two if necessary.

I would like the Magic to win because they're fun to watch and I really like the Shaq, Hardaway, Grant and Scott, but the Rockets have beaten me in all three series. They beat Utah, Phoenix and San Antonio after trailing in two of the series, so if you can't beat 'em, join 'em!!

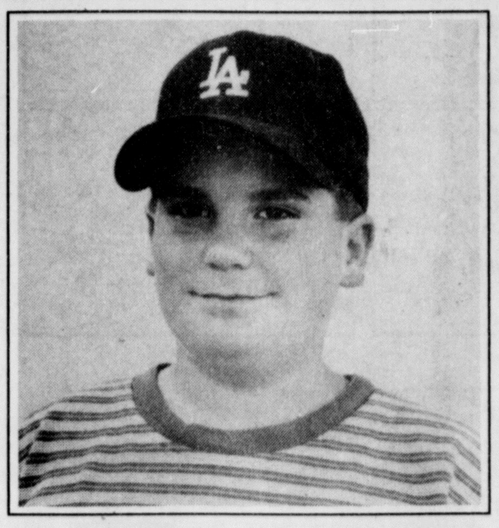
The Houston Rockets in six games!

The Giants (21-17) are still hanging onto first place, but the injury bug has hit and the June swoon is just around the corner! All-Star third baseman Matt Williams fouled a pitch off his right foot and broke his toe and will be out for six weeks!

Williams, who hit .405 in May, was named N.L. player of the month. Matt went 45 for 111 with 7 doubles, 12 home runs and 31 RBI. Terry Mulholland is out with a soreness in his pitching elbow and will go on the DL. Bad news for the Giants pitching staff, which is already weak! The Giants are still searching for Kevin Mitchell, who returned from Japan but who can't be found anywhere (try McDonalds). The Giants are also considering signing third baseman Chris Sabo, who was released by the White Sox two weeks ago.

The A's (19-18) continue to have their own problems as manager Tony LaRussa called All-Star Ruben Sierra the Village Idiot because of his comments in the local newspapers. McGwire and Henderson are back in the lineup, but are playing hurt as the A's battle to get out of last place.

See ya next week!!



Michael Stephan of the Dodgers wowed fans at Memorial Park recently by pitching a no-hitter.

David Savala of the Braves added a home run to his stats during a recent game.

News-Ledger Editorial

Bike lanes revisited; and a note to journalism students

The West Sacramento City Council will likely visit the bike lane issue again, a little earlier than they expected.

With a handful of vocal critics on both sides of the issue, the council will face another discussion on whether to put the new lanes on West Capitol Avenue in the plan they examined and voted down May 10.

Expect to see such issues as safety, business viability and anti-prostitution efforts all tied into the discussion.

Opponents of the lanes should realize that bike lanes, sooner or later, are inevitable on "WCA." They are part of the city's general plan and bicycle/pedestrian master plan, which were both passed after public deliberation.

Opponents of this particular bike lane plan should realize that they must do more than simply oppose it; they must offer an alternative besides a simple "no," if their voices are to carry weight.

Good luck in your future pursuits, and may the students who follow you on the newspaper prove equally talented.

Applause

On Friday evening, May 26, I took a break from my duties as a Jazz Jubilee volunteer to witness the debut of a new jubilee youth band -- the West Sacramento 6+2. This group of fledgling musicians from the fifth and sixth grades of Washington Unified School District performed at the 1995 Jazz Jubilee under the direction of WUSD music educator Kurt Pearsall. Already busy with two other Jubilee bands, Mr. Pearsall took it upon himself to provide these young musicians with an exciting and challenging educational experience.

I particularly enjoyed their renditions of "Hello, Dolly" and "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?" I admire all of them for having the courage to perform in front of a jazz jubilee crowd -- no small feat! And I applaud Mr. Kurt Pearsall for his willingness to go the extra step to both challenge and support his students. Bravo!

Response on Port

Having read the "Guest Opinion" (Why the Port of Sacramento is a wise public investment), I would like to voice my opinion.

With all the estimates and various plans being dreamed up by the port director, the whole thing boils down to the fact that he would like the tax payers to furnish the money. We should bear in mind that the port began as a 100% pork barrel project and remains the same to this day.

The port director mentions a "benefit assessment" but declines to say for whose benefit possibly some rice growing co-ops or some timber/wood chip interests, certainly not for the folks who have paid an assessment in the past. I know a large number of people in the port district and cannot think of a single one that benefits in any way from the port. Do you or your neighbor receive any benefits from the port district? Do you know anyone who does?

The port director says the port has paid a good dividend to its investors, the citizens of the port district. I have been standing in the wrong line. No dividend!

If the port cannot make it as a business without tax payer subsidies it should get out of business, close down, sell the taxpayer owned property, quit pouring tax payer money down a rat hole. Would you miss it? Neither would I.

3 Alligators

The following is regarding the Approved Framework Plan:

I live at 2880 Jefferson Blvd. in Southport. I have lived in Southport for many years, and I have been in business in West Sacramento for forty years. I work ten to twelve hours per day, thinking that someday there would be a future for normal housing in Southport.

My three brothers-in-law -- Mike, Victor and Louie Talani -- who are partial owners of Vinces Restaurant, and whom most of you know as friends and good neighbors, also all live in Southport. We purchased 9 1/2 acres that was zoned residential on the old general plan that allowed 1/2 acre lots and would also be allowed to be subdivided when sewer and water were available. We purchased this property with the intention of giving our children's homesites. The newly approved rezoning plan was to change this area into 2 1/2 acre parcels. Two of the city councilmen, Bill Kristoff and Roland Hensley, pleaded to give us the half acre lots zoning, but were defeated by the three majorities.

They proposed given us three single acre lots on Davis Road and leaving 6 1/2 acres of land in the rear land locked. Does this make sense? We feel they have trashed ours, our children's, and many other people's dreams.

My neighbor, Mr. Ernest Meyers, has five acres on Davis Road. He has owned for forty-eight years. He attended all of the zoning meetings and protested the zone changes.

Potnick, Beers, and Tuttle, who are running the town like three alligators running a swamp, did not give Mr. Meyers, in his old age, any respect; instead, they decided to simply trash his dreams. This is not the West Sacramento I believed in. The dream I believe in is equality and justice for all. It's down right criminal that they would allow a developer on the north end to build 11 to 12 homesites per acre near South River Road and Jefferson Blvd. With questionable access to the two-lane bridges that has had so many deaths and accidents. And deny Mr. Meyers and ourselves our half acre zoning.

West Sacramento Mayor Cindy Tuttle, in a Business Journal interview, compared the challenge to "climbing a mountain and nearing a peak...it's exciting and intense." Yet, the three council members continue to disregard what sacrifices we make for their fame. This is a true example of down zoning our properties. In a few months, the citizens will have a choice to elect council people who are not starving for power. It's time for a change.

More on Port

"Why the Port of Sacramento is a wise public investment," by port director John Sulpizio (News-Ledger, 5/31/95), paints a rosy picture of the port's past and an even brighter picture of its future if Sacramento County and West Sacramento residents (port's district) agree to a $10/year assessment with businesses coming up with a larger pro-rata share, although these specifics were not noted at this time.

Also not noted -- but should have been -- was a call for an environmental impact report (before/after proposed improvements) and financial impact reports. Such an EIR should bring out the non-financial pros and cons and the EIR should clarify financial arguments.

Does not Mr. Sulpizio's latest message still call for heavier use of the rails that if left in place would make unlivable those homes near Stone Blvd.? (Too bad he is not required to live between the tracks and Stone Blvd. as a pre-condition of his job...he'd learn fast and change his tune.) Should greater rail use justify higher bridges to/from Southport on Jefferson Blvd.?

Whether or not the port's expanded, most of the port's surplus land should be sold to generate new jobs and local revenues.

Since Sacramento has not totally capped the Blue Diamond (stay in Sacramento) deal, maybe the Port of Sacramento board should consider a deal with the Port of Stockton board of directors, allowing most of Port/Sacramento's business to go to the better located Port/Stockton in exchange for Stockton City Hall's backing off from any action to attract Blue Diamond from Sacramento. Sacramento's other forces could then back off from that big tax give-away program and most likely still convince Blue Diamond and their big profits to stay.

Sacramento could thus rid itself of an outmoded investment and allow West Sacramento to convert the Port of Sacramento to more realistic uses of the future. While many port jobs would be temporarily lost to Stockton, even more jobs would be saved locally at Blue Diamond (without the tax give-away!). Convert the local port to recreation-type uses and accelerate wider/higher Jefferson Blvd. bridges and we open up Southport to new construction jobs real soon. And to make for even more jobs sooner, Sacramento should say, "Yes!" to another bridge across the Sacramento River.

& More on Port

I have just read the plea for more tax money by John Sulpizio in the News-Ledger of 5/31/95, where he reiterates the same story we heard about 30 years ago about the advantages of the port of Sacramento to our local economy. We have paid off the bonds to dredge and build this port, only to face another possible tax increase to upgrade it to the point where it can be competitive with Stockton. I, for one, don't think there is enough business in this region to support two inland ports just 50 miles apart, with the progression of automation and science adjusting the way things are and the way we live. Who is to say that there will not be another need for more money to keep this port in business in the near future? Mr. Sulpizio states there will be increases in property values when the port is upgraded. Where have we heard that before?

I attended two port meetings where the focus was on a PG&E line crossed under the channel about eight miles west of the port and there was talk about litigation to see who was to pay

State of the City Community Reception

Mark your Calendars for Thursday, June 22, 5:30 P. M. to 7:30 P.M. The annual "State of the City" event will be held at California Trucking Association, 1251 Beacon Boulevard, West Sacramento. The event will feature a community reception, City displays, a flag ceremony and the West Sacramento Orchestra. The Mayor, City Council and City personnel will be in attendance. A nominal charge of $10 will be collected to cover the cost of hors d'oeuvres and light refreshments.

The event is traditionally held to honor the outgoing Mayor and City Council. Accomplishments of the past year will be detailed in the "State of the City " report. Last year, over 150 people attended. We are hoping for a large turnout again this year. This year's theme is entitled appropriately, "the window of opportunity."

Since incorporation in 1987, we have evolved into a full service City. The desire for quality development and a high standard of living was expressed in our vision statement: "To become the Premier City of the Sacramento Valley." Our City Work Plan is based on accomplishments that make our vision a reality.

During the last couple of years, we have completed major planning efforts such as the Triangle Specific Plan and the Southport Framework Plan and have made significant improvements to infrastructure such as West Capitol Avenue, Harbor Boulevard, the Water Treatment Plant and the Wastewater Treatment Plant. This will enable development to occur when it becomes economically feasible. We have also fine tuned the City organization to be more responsive to the needs of the community in as efficient manner as possible. Throughout the recent recession, we continued towards our goals.

Please join us to review some of the progress that has recently been made.

for moving the line; however, I don't know if it ever went to court. If it did, that explains where the remainder of the money Rep. Vic Fazio got approved to deepen the channel.

The bond we just got paid off was to be a one-time adventure and the port was to sustain itself; however, we are on our fourth director and there seems either not enough business to keep the port competitive or the wrong management to keep it in business without socking us, the taxpayers, for the means to keep it operating.

We all know the main beneficiaries of the port is big corporations who are located outside the tax region if they refuse to support this operation then why hang another $35,000,000 on the people of Sacramento and just West Sacramento? Why not tax all of Yolo County -- Davis, Woodland, Winters and Knights Landing -- where the majority of the people in this county live.

This port is a business and not tied to defense. If it cannot support itself, then why keep it open? We all realize it means jobs for a few people and it means big profits for big corporations, such as rice farmers, railroads and maybe some midwestern farmers and cargo shipping companies, etc.

And finally, the rhetoric about the value of property being increased...well, my property, along with some of my neighbors', will see a decrease in property value as this port increases it's tonnage of cargo by 400.000 tons of cargo. That will mean more rail traffic in back of our homes and will damage our homes even more than they have already done. I had a 35-minute meeting with Mr. Sulpizio about a year ago about the damage the trains were doing to my health and property, and he told me he would not try to enforce the agreement we in the homes along the tracks with the railroads and the P.U.C. to use only the tracks 50 yards to the south when entering and leaving the port; however, they kept using the tracks just 35 feet away from our homes. I finally got the ear of the two railroads in question and they have been doing a superb job lately, of which we appreciate ever so much.

Keep Harper House

An open letter to Mr. Mike Gonzales, president, board of directors, Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center:

Soroptimist International of West Sacramento would like to go on record as being opposed to the proposed move of Harper House (the Battered Womens Shelter). We understand there is a proposal being put forth to move the location from the present West Sacramento site to a site in Davis.

We feel this proposal is against the best interests of the clients served by the facility. Many of these clients are from the West Sacramento area and the transportation to Davis would be difficult, if not impossible, for many of them.

We recognize the validity of the argument that the location is too well-known in the community; however, there are many locations in West Sacramento which could be converted to shelter facilities.

Finally, the West Sacramento community has supported Harper House in all of its years of existence, with a special, caring bond having developed between the facility and the community.

We ask for your careful consideration and support in opposing this move.

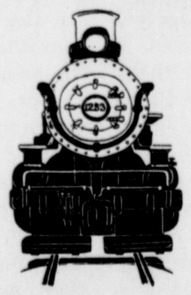
TRAIN ROBBERY!



WANTED!

- Willing victims are actively being sought to ride in the Great South Yolo train robberies on Saturday, July 1st and Saturday, October 7th 1995. Come and ride with us through the tranquil farm and delta lands of South Yolo while enjoying a leisurely ride on our train. Then watch as your peaceful jaunt through the serene farm and delta lands comes to an abrupt halt by the sounds of gunfire as the infamous Sierra Outlaws rob and loot their way through the train.
- The cost is $17.50 per person with the steam engine pulling the train and $15.50 for the diesel engine. If there is a mechanical problem prohibiting the use of the steam engine then a diesel will be substituted. The trip lasts approximately 3.5 to 4 hours and run from West Sacramento to Clarksburg and back.
- Maximum capacity is 200 willing passengers.
- There will be only one train per day.
- Those wishing to purchase Robbery Tokens may do so at the beginning of the train trip or in advance. These tokens sell for one dollar each and the proceeds go to the Parks and Community Services Department of the City of West Sacramento for fund raising purposes. Your purchase of tokens is a fully deductible charitable contribution. You will be "relieved" of your tokens by the desperados of the Sierra Outlaws Bunch during the daring robbery.
- The train leaves at 1:30 p.m. from South River Road and Jefferson Boulevard in West Sacramento (Call for map).
- Tickets can be purchased in advance or at the time of the trip, although advance purchase is recommended. If your advance ticket is purchased for the steam engine and we are running diesel, then the difference will be refunded to you at the time of the trip. You may purchase tickets and tokens in advance by sending a check or money order to Yolo Shortline Railroad, P.O. Box 724, West Sacramento, California, 95691. Tickets and tokens may also be purchased from the City of West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department, 1951 South River Road, West Sacramento, California, telephone number (916) 373-5860.
- Snacks, soft drinks and souvenirs sold on board. (Restrooms available)

Perennial adversary of West Sac to be guest of local club

From the West Sacramento Democratic Club

Lawsuits initiated by David Jones on behalf of low-income residents have cost the city of West Sacramento millions. City leaders' and homeowners groups' collective blood pressure goes up at the sound of his name. Even his supporters are occasionally confounded. Jones is rumored to be in line for a White House appointment.

What makes David Jones do the things that he does, and just why is affordable housing important? Mr. Jones will answer these questions when he speaks to members of the West Sacramento Democratic Club, and the public, at Johnnie's Pizza on Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 12.

Also on the agenda will be Doug Kaplan, Yolo County's elected public guardian, who will explain the duties of his job. A recently announced candidate for the State Assembly seat being vacated -- due to term limits -- by Democrat Tom Hannigan, Kaplan will also discuss issues of his candidacy.

Although the public is encouraged to attend this meeting, they are reminded that speakers are invited guests of the West Sacramento Democratic Club, and will be treated with respect and courtesy. Mr. Jones will not answer any questions specific to any pending litigation. Spokespersons for any organized group which desires to participate in this event must contact either Bob Horowitz at 371-3970 or Jim Cahill at 646-3225 by June 9.

The West Sacramento Democratic Club aims to foster a polite, yet candid, exchange of ideas. Local residents with an interest in things political and a lean toward things more equitable are encouraged to join. Annual dues are only $10.

Following the game is a briefing on some of the senior center's many activities.

This cleverly modified version of the ever-popular television game show has become a regular monthly event at the senior center, which is located at 664 Cummins Way.

It is played on the second Thursday of every month starting at 1 p.m. This month's game will be played tomorrow, June 8. All seniors are invited to attend. But no prompting from the audience, please.

The center's version of the game show offers the same mental challenge and is a lot of fun for both audience and players. For more information, call the center at 373-5819.
